

The dragon flew across. He stopped to give water to some people and animals and to blow the log the hare was on.

The cat got out of the river too late to have a year named after him and since then cats and rats have never been friends.

The Jade Emperor has forgotten the order that the animals finished the Great Race. Can you help him?

Watch the video of the story on our website and then ask an adult to help you cut out the boxes on this sheet and see if you can put them in the right order.

The rat pushed the cat into the river and jumped over the head of the ox to win the race.

The hare used stepping stones and jumped on a log which blew in the wind over the river.

The sneaky snake wound himself around the leg of the horse. He slithered out, made the horse jump and got to finish the race before the poor horse.

The sheep, the monkey and the rooster arrived on a raft that they had made together.

The tiger swam across the big river.

The rat and the cat were good friends but were not good swimmers. They asked the kind ox to help them and jumped on his back.

The pig stopped to eat and fell asleep before finishing the race!

The dog loved swimming but was slow because he had a bath.
