Books

Harefa, Oinike Natalia, Evangelism as Storytelling: A Reconstruction of Evangelism from a Feminist Postcolonial Missiological Perspective (Eugene, OR: Wipf & Stock, 2024)

Content:

Oinike Harefa challenges mission from a postcolonial feminist perspective and constructs a model of evangelism rooted in women's voices and perspectives. According to Harefa, evangelism should be about 'sharing gifts' rather than domination, and storytelling is a key component of this: 'there is power in storytelling and that power is not intended to dominate (power over), but to be shared (power with); that power does not take the form of coercion, but an invitation to act' (8).

Author:

Oinike Harefa is an Indonesian scholar and ordained pastor, currently working as a lecturer at BNKP Sundermann Theological Seminary.

Maggay, Melba Padilla, Transforming Society (Eugene, OR: Wipf & Stock, 1996)

Content:

This is a collection of essays written in the Philippines against the backdrop of poverty, authoritarianism and injustice. The essays fall within the theme of the Church's action in the world, and the first, 'The Task of the Church: Evangelism and Social Action,' outlines the argument central to the book – that evangelism and social action, while distinct, are both intrinsic aspects of the gospel. The book is in three parts: the first explores the subversive potential of the Christian faith; the second surveys various approaches to societal transformation the Church has taken; and the third shares lessons learned from the author's personal experience.

Author:

Melba Padilla Maggay is a Filipina scholar and founder of the Institute for Studies in Asian Church and Culture (ISACC)

Woodley, Randy, Mission and the Cultural Other: A Closer Look (Eugene, OR: Wipf & Stock, 2022)

Content:

A decolonial critique of modern mission practice that has emerged from Woodley's positionality as someone who spans both Indigenous and Western cultures and worldviews. Woodley calls the Church in the West to deep listening, in order to learn a new way of conceiving of mission among the cultural other. At the end of each chapter, Woodley provides questions for reflection and discussion.

Author:

Randy Woodley is an indigenous scholar and activist based in the US.

Kwiyani, Harvey, "The Mission of the Kingdom" in Multicultural Kingdom: Ethnic Diversity, Mission and the Church (London: SCM Press, 2020)

Content:

In this chapter, Harvey Kwiyani discusses the history of missionary movements within different regions of the world, as well as the influence of these regions on mission in Europe. Kwiyani notes the need for connection between different cultural groups, such as British and non-Western Christians, and the potential impact such engagement could have on mission and evangelism in the country.

Author:

Harvey Kwiyani is a Malawian missiologist and theologian, currently based in the UK.

Nsenga-Ngoy, Lusa, "Evangelism across Cultures," in Snow, M., ed. Anglican Evangelists: Identifying and Training a New Generation (London: SPCK, 2019)

Content:

Nsenga-Ngoy explores cross-cultural evangelism, something he sees as the responsibility of all. Evangelism is not about pitting narratives against each other, since no culture can claim to have a monopoly on the gospel. Rather, evangelism is relational, requiring genuine encounter, and the ability to journey alongside others as God's story is interpreted in the particular stories of people and communities.

Author:

Born in DRC, Lusa Nsenga-Ngoy is the Bishop of Willesdon.
