

The Mohamed Ali Foundation Fellowship programme

Fellow: role and responsibilities

The Mohamed Ali Foundation

The Mohamed Ali Foundation is a UK charity whose aims include advancing the education of the public in the history of the Islamic World, of Egypt and of the Mohamed Ali Family in particular, especially the period of reign of Khedive Abbas Hilmi II (1892-1914).

The Abbas Hilmi II Papers

Among the rich archival resources at Durham University Library is the collection of Abbas Hilmi II (1874-1944), the last Khedive of Egypt (1892-1914), whose papers provide excellent research material on political, social, economic and cultural affairs in Egypt in the late 19th and first half of the 20th centuries, the British in Egypt and, to a lesser extent, the Sudan, and Egypt's relations with Britain, Turkey and the rest of Europe. The archive principally covers the period from the mid-19th Century up until the death of Abbas Hilmi II in 1944, but with some additional family material dating up to the 1960s. The collection was deposited in Durham by the Mohamed Ali Foundation in 1980. It contains material principally in Arabic, English, Ottoman Turkish, and French, but also some German, Italian, and Greek. Digital copies of the Abbas Hilmi II Papers are also deposited at the American University in Cairo.

The Fellowship Programme

The Fellowship Programme is established in order to support a programme of academic research in the Abbas Hilmi II Papers and to make the collection's strengths more widely known to scholars. It is hoped that this will foster deeper understanding of an important period of Egyptian history, and of a transformative era in East-West relations.

Annual fellowships will be awarded over several years at Durham University. Residencies will typically extend for the duration of the Easter term (late April to late June) and will be tenable in the Institute for Middle Eastern & Islamic Studies. Some fellows may reside in Cairo, Istanbul or elsewhere.

The Fellowship carries a grant, accommodation and all meals during the residency period. At Durham fellows will reside at a College where they are encouraged to take a full part in the life of the Senior Common Room during their residence. They will be entitled to full access to departmental and other University facilities such as Computing and Information Services and the University Library.

Role

The Fellow will research in the Abbas Hilmi II Papers, on an agreed topic, and deliver a lecture at Durham University.

Each lecture will be published as a paper in Durham University's Middle East Papers series.

Each such paper will become a chapter in a volume of high quality and original research to be edited by Dr Pascale Ghazaleh, the first Fellow.

The breadth of material in the Abbas Hilmi II Papers will reward an interdisciplinary approach. Such is the richness of the photographic material in the archive that fellows are strongly encouraged to highly illustrate their work with examples from the collection. A commercial photographic publication is also timed to be released in the first half of the Fellowship programme.

In order to guide candidate fellows an outline plan of the collection's subject strengths is provided in the fellowship application documentation. This is not intended to be prescriptive and the Advisory Panel will consider alternative suggestions so long as they are well-grounded in the Abbas Hilmi II Papers and this is evidenced in the application proposal.

Responsibilities

The Fellow will:

- research in the Abbas Hilmi II Papers
- deliver a lecture at Durham based on this research
- produce to deadline a high quality original book chapter on an agreed topic from work undertaken during her / his fellowship residency drawing upon material from the Abbas Hilmi II Papers
- help to promote the fellowship through appropriate networks

Person Specification

The Fellow will be:

- a specialist on 19th and early 20th-century Egypt
- an early career (post-doctoral) or established scholar
- with proven research experience
- and a publication record

The nature of the collection will often require good reading knowledge of Arabic, Ottoman Turkish, French, and English. The online catalogue of the collection indicates the languages of each file of material.

The Fellow will be a good networker who can promote the fellowship effectively to prospective fellows.

Residence

At least half of the fellows in the programme will reside at Durham during their fellowship, and all fellows will at least visit Durham once in order to deliver their lecture.

Fellows may request to reside elsewhere and consult digital copies of the Abbas Hilmi II Papers.

Fellows who reside at Durham will be encouraged to visit other countries with useful related archives. It would be beneficial for all concerned if visiting fellows were also able to participate in academic activities in universities or research institutes in Egypt, Turkey and elsewhere. A research travel grant is available to each fellow to facilitate such activities.

Research output

Fellows will assign their copyright in any relevant work produced during the fellowship to Durham University so that it may be published in the university's Middle East Papers series, in the edited volume (electronic and print editions), and in any other way that may promote the Abbas Hilmi II Papers and the Fellowship programme. Durham University will grant to the fellow a non-exclusive, irrevocable, royalty-free licence in any such relevant work.

The Mohamed Ali Foundation Fellowship and Durham University should be acknowledged in all publications.

Key Relationships

The Fellow will liaise with the Managing Editor Dr Pascale Ghazaleh, and develop good working relationships with the archivist responsible for the Abbas Hilmi II Papers at Durham or with library staff working at other locations where a digital copy of the archive has been deposited.
