A: THE SCHOOL

Durham Law School www.dur.ac.uk/law is a world leader in legal education and research. The Law School is in its largest expansion of permanent full-time appointments in our distinguished 50-year history as we build additional capacity in core areas and further develop other strengths building critical mass in the areas of Public Law and Human Rights, Commercial and Corporate Law, EU Law, Chinese Law and Biolaw. Our award-winning academic staff are producing ground-breaking research with significant impact and are highly active in public engagement both nationally and internationally. We are a top 50 QS World Ranked law school and ranked 6th in The Complete University Guide 2024. We were awarded the Athena Swan Bronze Award for commitment to the advancement of gender equality: representation, progression and success for all in 2022. Durham Law School is consistently ranked among the top ten or higher UK law schools across various league tables.

We are proud to deliver some of the best results for student satisfaction and employability – and our graduates include some of law’s leading figures, such as current or previous members of the UK Supreme Court, the Court of Appeal, Members of Parliament and in Government. Our top-ranked global law courses are very competitive with an excellent and diverse students population from across the world delivering a cutting-edge and research-led curriculum with a commitment to small group teaching through seminars and tutorials much prized by employers.

We teach our undergraduate degrees on the University’s main Campus in Durham. All of our students benefit from an integrated curriculum and are taught to be international leaders in their fields on the one campus.

The Law School is located ‘on the science site’ in the Palatine Centre which is next to the main library on Stockton Road.

Further information for Exchange students can be found via the University’s International Office link:

B: DEGREE STRUCTURE

All undergraduate degrees at Durham have a modular structure, usually consisting of six 10 ECTS modules each year for three years. Modules are usually studied over the first two terms of the three terms in an academic year. The third term is mostly dedicated to revision and the examination period. The terms at Durham are: Michaelmas from October to the end of December (10 weeks of teaching), Epiphany from mid-January to mid-March (10 weeks of teaching), and Easter from the end of April to mid-May (6 weeks of revision/examinations).

All modules are examined or assessed English, and in the year in which they are taught, during the year and/or a dedicated exam period that takes place from the beginning of May to the beginning of June. At the end of the first year there are preliminary examinations that do not contribute to the final degree classification, which is determined by the assessments and examinations taken only in the second and final year of study.

Incoming Exchange students often wish to study at Durham only during the Michaelmas term, but in this case it is impossible for the University to provide housing so we do not encourage this. In addition, studying at Durham for one term only creates complications with assessments since most modules are taught over both terms. It is far more beneficial to study with us for a period of at least two terms. Durham Law School does not normally accept students who wish to come for less than a full academic year (October – June).

Students opting to study at Durham for a full academic year are expected to submit the same assessments and sit exams in May-June, like all full-time Durham students. These marks will be conveyed back to your home institution after the Board of Examiners meets at the end of June. The marks will be processed first by the School and then the University's central administration, after which they will be sent to your university (approximately 1-2 months later). Unfortunately, we are unable to speed up the process on your behalf, so please make sure your home institution is aware of the timeline we must adhere to under these circumstances.

C: REQUIREMENTS AND RESTRICTIONS

This section contains important information for setting up your academic programme at Durham University. Please read through this section carefully before considering your Modules and completion of the Learning Agreement!

C1: General

Choice of Modules

At Durham University European agreements are signed by individual university departments and are not university-wide agreements. This means that, in general, students will have to choose modules (courses) within the Durham University department through which the European agreement with their home university has been signed (students should check with the Exchange Coordinator in their university if they are not sure which department this is). Modules offered by other departments are subject to availability and can only be taken with prior consent from the relevant department. Incoming students must take at least 50% of their modules in the host department and can take modules outside in no more than two additional departments. Certain restrictions may also apply to courses in some departments and students need to follow the advice below carefully before completing their application form.

Please clearly indicate the modules you wish to take in the application form for approval by the respective department(s). Before completing your application form, it is very important that you read carefully the relevant departmental section(s) of the Module Handbook to check which modules are available to you and any restrictions which may apply. It is imperative that a properly completed application form is submitted. Only complete applications can be processed.

Section D: Module Details provides a list of modules available for European students in the department where the agreement has been established (receiving department) as well as a list of modules available for students coming in through other departments (external departments). Please choose from these modules only!

C2: Departmental Requirements and Restrictions

The School has no specific requirements for incoming Exchange students, but we will assess every application individually.

If the Exchange Coordinator has concerns about the modules you choose to study at Durham, you might be contacted directly to discuss your choices. New choices can be made upon your arrival, but it is preferable to avoid this if at all possible. However, it does happen and we can accommodate new choices if your interests have changed or you find timetabling conflicts.

Please check with your home university's Exchange Coordinator that you have taken the right number of credits when filling in the learning agreement and again as soon as you have arrived and registered in Durham. All assessments are in English.

Please note that those students currently registered on an undergraduate programme can only take undergraduate modules here in Durham.

D: MODULE DETAILS

This section contains a list of modules Exchange students can choose from. Please only select from the modules listed in sections D1 or D2 in this Module Handbook!

If you do not have any prior knowledge of Law, we recommend taking modules from Year 1 in Section D2.

We are currently in the process of changing our modules offered at Level 2 and Level 3, and the information provided here is correct at time of publication. To find out about the details for each module (teaching methods and contact hours, method of assessment, content, etc.) please refer to the programme of "M101: LLB Law" in the Faculty Handbook online under:

<https://apps.dur.ac.uk/faculty.handbook/2024/UG/department/Law>

Then click on the module codes on the right for further information (for example 'LAW1051' etc.)

Please note:

Due to specific modular requirements exchange students cannot be admitted to study the following Modules:

- LAW3022 - Dissertation

Due to module caps in 2025/26, exchange students cannot be admitted to study the following modules:

- LAW2121 – Law of Family Relationships
- LAW3447 – Pensions Law

This list is not definitive and decisions in relation to other modules will be made at the discretion of Durham Law School. All module selections must be approved by the Durham Law School Exchange Coordinator. Permission to take a module will depend on a variety of factors, including availability of modules, and whether the module is available in the term of study of the exchange student.

Our Postgraduate modules are not available for Exchange students.

D2: Modules available to students coming on an external link (through a different Durham department)

For students with no prior knowledge of Law, there are six year 1 modules available. They may be also be suitable for students coming through a direct link and this is up to your discretion.

Students who already possess a background in Law should refer to section D1 for a more appropriate choice of modules. Although these Year 1 modules below can also be made available to students with some background, this is only in the instance where the subject is not taught at the student's home institution.
